

Service Leavers: Want to secure a new career and build your future?

Introducing the Military to Masonry scheme for service leavers.

Being in the Armed Forces means that you've already proven you have the grit, teamwork and discipline to succeed under pressure. Those same strengths can help you succeed in a new career that values hard work, structure and camaraderie... in the construction industry.

Military to Masonry is a bespoke, 10-day training programme designed exclusively for service leavers, giving you everything you need to start work on site with confidence.

Why Military to Masonry works

Military to Masonry gives you a clear, structured route from the end of your service to a guaranteed job in construction. The programme is fast, practical and designed around the strengths you already have from your time in the Forces.

Here's exactly what you'll gain from the programme:

- 10 days of hands-on, practical training
- Level 1 Health & Safety qualification
- CITB Operatives Test & CSCS Red Trainee Card
- A guaranteed job with a trusted employer
- Continued support and NVQ progression once you start work.

Why choose Military to Masonry, and why are you a natural fit for this programme? It's all in your background; military life and the construction industry are similar because both require:

- ✓ Teamwork and trust
- ✓ Structure and routine
- ✓ Discipline and reliability
- ✓ Physical capability and resilience
- ✓ Pride in delivering high-quality work.

Your existing skills transfer directly to the bricklaying environment, and that's why Service leavers, just like you, excel in this trade!

Who can join?

The Military to Masonry programme is designed for service leavers ready to apply their military skills to a new, hands-on career in construction. It's ideal for those who:

- Have served in the infantry, other frontline roles and support roles across all three services, where teamwork, discipline and resilience are key.
- Are young soldiers leaving after a short-term career, ready to build a fresh start in civilian life.
- Have the physical ability and drive to succeed in a practical, outdoor trade.
- Value structure and camaraderie, recognising how closely site life mirrors service life.

If you're motivated, reliable and ready for your next challenge, this pathway is for you.

How does the Military to Masonry programme work?

The Military to Masonry programme takes you from the end of your service to the start of your new career, in a simple step-by-step approach. We've carefully designed our Military to Masonry Programme to mirror the discipline and structure of military life. What's more, the process is simple, supportive and focused on getting you ready for a role in the masonry and construction industry.

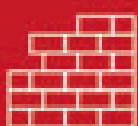

Step one: Pre-course support

Before training begins, you'll complete your Level 1 Health & Safety qualification and CITB test, supported by our tutors every step of the way. We'll also help you apply for your CSCS Red Trainee Card, so you're fully site-safe and ready to train.

This preparation ensures you can focus entirely on hands-on skills once the course starts.

Step two: 10 days of hands-on training

During this intensive two-week programme, you'll learn practical bricklaying skills in a structured, military-style environment. From mixing mortar and setting profiles to laying bricks to a line, every day builds your confidence and precision.

By the end of the course, you'll have the skills, discipline and mindset to be productive from day one on site.

Step three: Meet your employer

On the final day of training, you'll meet directly with your future employer (who is one of our trusted industry partners). These employers understand the value of Service leavers and are ready to offer guaranteed work to successful graduates.

Step four: Start work

After completing the programme, you'll move straight into paid work as a bricklayer. You'll work alongside experienced tradespeople who'll support and guide you as you settle into your new role and routine.

Step five: Continue your journey

Your development doesn't stop once you're employed. With our ongoing support, you'll have access to further training, mentoring and progression to NVQ Level 2, helping you build a sustainable, long-term career in construction.

Ready to join the Military to Masonry scheme?

If you're ready to trade your beret for a hard hat and build a career that's as rewarding as it is practical, Military to Masonry is here to help.
